BUSINESS BLOOMS ON BUENA VISTA STREET!

Citizens from Oswald's to Carthay Circle are busy preparing for visitors from around the world to arrive on Buena Vista Street. Shopkeepers fueled by hope and optimism are eager to present their freshest ideas, products, and perspectives. Indeed, local grocer Mortimer McKenzie aptly accentuates the positive in his distinctive high-pitched voice: "Ah gee, spring's a swell time to enjoy our fresh produce," he declared. "Here at Mortimer's Market, we have the freshest fruit in town - guaranteed!"

Speaking of fresh, the confectioners at Trolley Treats are busy as bees creating a buzz of new ideas for spring. Indeed, according to owner and head confectioner Carol Hoffenberger, "Folks will have a fresh pick of unique treats to celebrate this season, like our Honey Apple, Graduation Mickey Apple, and juicy Mother's Day chocolate-covered strawberries. We'll have something to satisfy everybody's sweet tooth."

And no one is more excited to greet Buena Vista Street visitors than that budding silver screen star, Mickey Mouse. Ever since his breakout role as ever-cheerful Steamboat Willie, his career has been full steam ahead! Watch out Garbo and Gable! No one packs a theater like this cinema charmer. And don't forget about his motion picture partner, Walt Disney—we hear he's about to launch a brand new venture: a feature-length animation film. If anyone can do it, Disney can!

Opportunity, discovery and imagination define the spirit of the citizens on Buena Vista Street. Indeed, these talented individuals will continue to inspire innovation and success for years to come!

OSWALD'S HOPS TO IT

Spring break got you hitting the road? Pull into Oswald's filling station, famous for its super speedy service, and swoop up all your vacation necessities: suntan lotion, key chains, batteries, sunglasses, and more. The minute you put on the brakes, quick-service attendants will zoom to your side before you can blink.

Some say Oswald's hop-to-it personality, goofy laugh, and funny ears inspired young animator Walt Disney to draw a rabbit with a "can-do" attitude. The second the owner saw that sketch, he just knew Oswald the Lucky Rabbit was destined to become the filling station's mascot. "Gawd, that rabbit's my lucky charm, I reckon," declares owner Oswald. "Those flop-eared Oswald hats, pretty much leap off the shelves!"

Today, you'll spot Oswald's lucky mascot on all sorts of souvenirs from knit-plush rabbits to glassware and mugs—even "Service with a Smile" shirts. What a gal! Oswald's is conveniently located just inside the Main Entrance.

"I" on Food

with Inglebert Irving

CAPRICIOUS CONSIDERATIONS
(STOP) Vacation overtook me when a telegram interrupted my inner deliberations on a Mediterranean coast vacation. They were dear Mum's words, calling me to the Alfresco Lounge, a place she insisted was "just right for relaxation." Relaxation? In a sea of humanity? A dubious declaration, indeed. However, given my longings for the land of Michelangelo, I acquiesced to visit the upper story lounge of the Golden Vine Winery.

It was unexpected. The view was every bit as beautiful as I dreamed the Italian Riviera to be. Craftsmen lanterns, a vine-entwined pergola, a cherished stalk from a vineyard, and whispering treetops framed a magnificent view of the Ornament Valley. Yet, I would not allow the distraction to seduce me. Without dazzling food, nature and nighttime are but pedestrian delights.

I motioned for the wait staff and demanded to taste the offerings that drew admiration from the supper crowd. The famed Rustic Bruschetta was slid before me: delicately roasted artichokes, caramelized onions, sun-dried tomatoes, snippets of shiitake and crimini mushrooms, all plated to perfection with tomato oil and parmesan. I thought nothing could hold more splendor until the waiter delivered the pièce de résistance: the Tenderloin Pate, a sumptuously seared filet mignon with house-made blue cheese aioli. Paired with the deep black cherry notes of a fine Pinot Noir, my discerning palette surrendered.

For variation, take advantage of the bartender's talent. I endorse the Truffle Olive Martini and the Rye Manhattan, garnished with a trio of gourmet maraschino cherries. Non-imbibers will most certainly appreciate the Wild Strawberry Lemonade and the No-Jito.

Having satisfied my yearning for an Argean escape, I pondered the most suitable way to let Mum know that—yet again—she was right. Perhaps, with a tranquil evening at the Alfresco Lounge. After all, I give it my finest recommendation and suggest a visit pronto. Walk-ups are accepted starting each afternoon, subject to availability.

The Appetizing Lure of the Alfresco Lounge

Inglebert also recommends:

- Signature Field Greens Salad with romaine, iceberg and spinach, topped with blue cheese, dried cranberries, caramelized pecans and hand vinaigrette from Boardwalk Pizza & Pasta.
- Warm San Francisco White Chocolate and Cinnamon Bread Pudding from Pacific Wharf Cafe.
- The Grilled Chicken Sandwich with Monterey Jack and chipotle aioli at Taste Pinot's Grill.
- Refreshing Fresh Fruit and Ice Cold Beverages at Mortimer's Market on Buena Vista Street, Fairfax Market on Hollywood Boulevard and Fillmore's Taste-In in Cars Land.
- Onion Biscuits, slow braised lamb served with creamy polenta and seasonal vegetables, to be savored by chefs this April at the Golden Vine Winery.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

My mailbag is bursting at the seams this spring! Seems like everyone's got a note they want to send. "Happy Mother's Day!" "Con-grad-ulations!" "It's a Boy!" Added to the Earth Day and Easter cards. I just want everyone to know that I am going to do my very best to deliver all this fresh cheer—and I don't just mean my letters. If you see me, be sure to tell me all about your special spring celebration!

Sincerely,
Molly the Messenger

Dear Editor,

Adored your article about Seasons of Love! Charming couples make me swoon, but it's puppy love that truly has my heart! I gave Lady a warm bath and her favorite treat to show my appreciation for her, and she returned the favor with such happiness. The Season of Love may be gone, but we are well into the Season of Joy!

Lovingly,
Donna the Dog Lady

Dear Editor,

The other day I tried to give a good behavior citation, but I was out of tickets. Don't worry, fellow citizens. More are coming. I ordered twice my usual amount because I know this spring will be full of good behavior.

SPRING CLEANING WITH A SMILE

Earth Day, Every Day!

Springtime is spring cleaning time. But for the citizens of Disney California Adventure Park, spring cleaning is a joyous undertaking every day. "Keeping the neighborhoods sparkling is a devoted way of life around here. It all started with that young animator, Walt Disney," recalls Mr. Dominguez, owner and operator of Los Feliz Five 'n' Dime. "Walt had this idea, to make sure the neighborhood was not only safe – but spotless – for families to enjoy together. Sure is inspirational. Thanks to him, you can see citizens picking up trash from Buena Vista Street to Paradise Pier."

Folks from Custodial Guest Services see that every sidewalk, street, restroom, and establishment is neat and orderly for everyone to enjoy.

They encourage everyone to do their part in recycling, which is why they make sure all recycling cans are conveniently placed – and each can is lined with a plastic insert that is made from recycled content. In fact, if they see a tidy tyke doing his part to help keep things "clean and green", he may just get an "Honorary Sweeper" sticker.

With Earth Month coming up, they want you to know that helping out doesn't end here! The Custodial team extends their efforts globally by donating their still-wearable shoes to Goodwill, who in turn distributes them to people in need around the world. Recognize our team by their spick-and-span white custodial outfits, and let them know how you're getting swept up in helping the planet.

Clarabelle's Hand-Scooped Ice Cream:

Best Scoop in Town

Everyone who's anyone has been following Clarabelle's Hand-Scooped Ice Cream from the tops. This ice cream parlor just off Carthay Circle is stuffed with sweet treats to cool you down—which is ever more important as we swing into spring.

Clarabelle's knows what's what, and the ice cream specialists have designed "The Oswald" sundae, which puts the Lucky Rabbit's face (vanilla) atop his body (chocolate)! This ice-cream rabbit even has ears: two bananas dipped in your choice of milk or dark chocolate. Topped with whipped cream, chocolate chips, and cherries, there's no question that Oswald is the swellest bunny around.

If "The Oswald" sundae doesn't toot your horn, Clarabelle's has plenty more surprises that are "udderly" delightful. The best of these fabulous frozen treats is the posi-lute-ly personalized hand-dipped ice cream bar. "Every bar is made to order," explained store owner Clarabelle Cowherd. "First, choose your favorite ice cream flavor: vanilla bean, chocolate, or mixed berry sorbet. Then pick your chocolate: milk or dark. Then, my favorite part! Choose a topping. We've got chocolate chips, blue raspberry bursts, rainbow sprinkles, and confetti Mickey's! Can't decide?" She guffawed. "Just order the 'Whole Herd'! Yep, that's on the menu, too.

Coming down the pipeline, this reporter has the real scoop: be on the lookout for the all-new Mickey Mouse Kitchen Sink Souvenir Cup! Clarabelle's Hand-Scooped Ice Cream is located at 926 Carthay Circle.

Light My Way

Travels with Phippi Francis Into the Night

On one glorious night, the stars drew a path outside my door and beckoned me into the majestic Cadillac Range of Ornament Valley. The black ribbon of the highway known as Route 66 was lit up with a rainbow of neon wonderment: aquamarine, turquoise, orchid and tangerine burn brightly to music. Following my light, I traversed the pavement, drinking in the neon landscape, until I came upon DJ's Dance 'n Drive, a jiving jalopy that pulsed with the beat of the universe. "Life is a highway," insisted the music, and before long my toes were tapping. Right there, outside of Flo's V8 Café, I felt accelerated to seek more.

As I meandered beneath the stars, I was guided toward the magic of music, this time to Hollywood Land where I bounded through a rabbit hole into a wild universe. The colorful wonderland of the Mad T Party whirled me in and I felt free. I gyred and gamboled alongside the Mad Hatter and Alice; my inner child playfully posed with Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum, and I danced — oh, how I danced! Refreshed and even giddy, I struck out toward Paradise Bay, where my inner light had been calling me all evening.

I joined thousands of waiting people, some wearing glowing hats and necklaces — and transfixed upon Mickey's Fun Wheel. A group of friendly travelers welcomed me and lent me a "smart device" and I was able to engage in a game of color matching, wherein my quickness earned me the opportunity to create a cacophony of color upon the spinning attraction's exterior. "Magnifique!" My fellow travelers cheered me on, as we laughed and played again and again. And once the fountains began to dance, we learned the true meaning of beauty. The water! The colors! The fire! The music! Light from every direction, from the fountains and the travelers, mingled together and created a great, wonderful World of Color. And at that moment, standing beside the glow of my newfound friends, in awe of the beauty before us, I knew my guiding light had once again taken me right where I needed to be.
