BUENA VISTA STREET SIZZLES!

It's official! Things are heating up on Buena Vista Street! Fresh off an all-night celebration to kick off the summer, the citizens of Buena Vista Street are fueled with optimism. "Ah gee, if our summer kick-off is any indicator, it's sure to be a swell summer!" declared Mortimer McKenzie, owner of Mortimer's Market in his signature high-pitched voice.

Indeed, in a party like no other, Guests were encouraged to "Rock Your Disney Side!" and could be seen laughing more, screaming louder and living life to the fullest and shopkeepers are prepared to keep that same exhilaration and excitement rockin' all summer long.

Local businesses have located nifty offerings to help you "Rock Your Disney Side", like hats inspired by Mickey, Minnie and Goofy at Los Feliz Five & Dime, Princess and Wicked Tee's at Elias & Company and sweets like the Olaf candied apple found at Trolley Treats. There's something for almost every style, right here on the street of dreams!

"I" on Food of Vacation with Inglebert Irving Victuals

In this season where humanity takes to the streets, and temperatures rise willing my perfectly starched collar, I aspire to remain indoors, armed with a classic novel (Milton, or perhaps Homer) and an opera playing on my radio. Yet with my cook on vacation, a hole grew in my life—or, more precisely, my stomach. And so, upon learning that the Carthay Circle Restaurant would be introducing their new summer menu, I decided it was time to wield my red pen of sardonicism once again.

Upon entering the grand dining establishment, I was greeted by friendly staff who made my journey from foyer to first course smooth and—dare I say—enjoyable. I was taking in the rich art deco design of the dining room when the wait staff slid a refreshing Tomato Avocado Salad before me. Hardly the languished leaf I expected. I followed it up with the Chicken Baby Spinach Ravioli which was finished with summer corn broth, crimini mushrooms, and apple bacon. I surrendered to the bold flavors and topped it all off with a Valrhona Caramel Chocolate Turnover with house-made marshmallow and Carthay Theatre Popcorn ice cream at the turnover's side.

The dessert conjured memories of my summers as a child, going to the theatre with dear mum eating theater popcorn and walking hand in hand to the ice cream parlor afterwards. It wasn't until after the very last bite that a dreamy expression of joy appeared upon my face and I realized, for the first time that I did not dread this season quite so terribly.

Needless to say, I give Carthay Circle Restaurant my highest recommendation, because the food deserves this smile. Priority seating is recommended and World of Color dining packages are available as well by calling the (714)781-DINE.

Inglebert also recommends:

- Osso Buco - Slow braised lamb served with creamy polenta and seasonal vegetables at Golden Wine Vinery.
- Boardwalk Field Greens - Fresh greens, tomatoes, blue cheese, cucumbers, dried cranberries and golden raisins, caramelized pecans and a basil vinaigrette at Boardwalk Pizza & Pasta.
- Housemade seasonal pies and classic frosty milkshakes at Flo's V8 Café.
- New at Cozy Cone #5, Chocolate, Cinnamon and Cheddar Garlic Bagel Twists with Frozen Lemonade.

Red Car Trolley- Travels in Style!

Hop on a Red Car Trolley at any one of its four convenient stops and travel in style from Buena Vista Street to The Twilight Zone Tower of Terror in Hollywood Land. Thousands of passengers have enjoyed the "Comfort - Speed - Safety" of this nifty form of transportation.

Some have even spotted the Red Car Trolley Newsboys hitching a ride with that budding new star Mickey Mouse! They can often be seen spreading good news in front of the fountain at Carthay Circle.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

One of my favorite things about summer is the sun. I like things like sunshine, sunny dispositions, and sun hats. If any of your readers feel the same way, I want them to know that I will be happy to deliver a sunny message on their behalf, just to brighten up someone's day! They can wave me down when they see me on my bicycle.

Sincerely,
Muffy the Messenger

Dear Editor,

While many people stroll about in summer, it's times like these, when you are on vacation and far away from home, that a friendly face can be like a cool tonic to the hustle and bustle of busy days. If visitors encounter any overt friendliness, they are very welcome to let me know immediately. I will be quickly on the spot to issue a good citizens citation for such engaging and polite behavior.

Officially,

Light My Way

Travels with Phippi Francis A Storied Escape

I stepped off the fabulous Red Car Trolley and found myself, like a young dreamer, on Hollywood Blvd. where the lights crisscrossed the sky and the marquee forever scrolls the stars. A subtle light called me down the busy boulevard and into a building where "Once upon a time..." beckoned me, stirring a desire to travel the stories of others. So in I walked, and there before me shined glorious pictures, some moving and some still. Princesses and superheroes, monsters and magic filled the air, all matched to music that touched my heart. C'est magnifique!

More than anything, I wanted to be a part of these stories, to be bathed in the light of creation. So to the Sorcerer's Workshop I went. A chair awaited me in a room of books that was watched over by a painting of a Beast. I sat, and the book came to life. Question after question it asked me, and I answered them all. Which character would I become? Whose story would I join? I could barely contain myself as the page cleared to reveal—Ariel, the Little Mermaid!

Leaving the illuminating workshop behind, I ventured on. My intrinsic path led me to the Animation Academy, where an artist instructed me to take up a pencil and draw. My creative heart filled with joy as I made a circle here and a line there. And finally, when I had created the image of a little snowman grinning on my page, I realized how brightly my light shined, indeed.
